October is a beautiful time to collect leaves and start your very own plant collection! You will build a flower-and-leaf-press and make a plant journal to take home. To collect leaves and learn about plants, we will take a walk on the Prothonotary Warbler Trail at Nature Conservancy’s Nassawango Creek Preserve. The trail leads you through gorgeous old growth forest with large bald cypress, oak, and tulip poplar trees. The Nassawango Creek Preserve is also known for its many rare plants such as 14 species of orchids, lots of birds, especially warblers, and the most beautiful part of the Nassawango Creek. Please wear sturdy shoes and your mask, and bring bug spray.
